THE UNITED CHURCHES, HOT SPRINGS, SOUTH DAKOTA

Pastor's Pulpit:

Ah ...May! Spring is in the air. Trees are blooming. Snow is nearly gone. It's time to plant flowers and such that will adorn our homes with beauty and fragrance. I've learned the hard way that you don't plant anything until after Mother's Day ... at least here in South Dakota. Speaking of Mothers, I'd like to take a few minutes and share with you some thoughts about my own mother's life. She's been with the Lord now going on three years, and I still miss her.

- "A mother's love liberates." – Maya Angelou
- "The truth is that no matter how old we are, as long as our mothers are alive, we want our mother." – Goldie Hawn
- "Mothers and their children are in a category all their own. There's no bond so strong in the entire world, no love so instantaneous and forgiving." – Gail Tsukiyama

My mom's young life was a pretty normal one in Berwick, Pennsylvania. Hers was a home shared with an older brother, a mother who suffered from agoraphobia, and a father whose life was marked by constant job changes due to his alcoholism. Still, she was perky and fun and independent. So much so that when the family moved to San Diego when she was 15, she immediately found herself in a high school romance with the one who would eventually become her first husband, mainly due to her pregnancy at age 16. They did marry, and she gave birth to two more boys. At 21, she was the mother of three, all under five! Her adolescence was never really given a normal course. And the transition to adulthood was something that she continued to struggle with all her life. Still, she did manage to graduate from high school and provided a loving atmosphere in our home, and for the boys she truly loved. However, being a child of an alcoholic, she was attracted to men who needed to be "fixed."

At 28 she was divorced, with three children, and no real job skills, so she was dependent on her folks to help out financially. By this time, both of her parents had come into a relationship with Jesus Christ. Her dad stopped drinking. Her mom had a new freedom to be outside for long periods of time. My mom being an independent person, applied for and then pursued a Nursing degree from Scripps Hospital in San Diego. Nursing was a great fit for her—caring for and helping others.

- “My mother has always been my emotional barometer and my guidance. I was lucky enough to get to have one woman who truly helped me through everything.” – Emma Stone
- “There is no velvet so soft as a mother’s lap, no rose as lovely as her smile, no path so flowery as that imprinted with her footsteps.” – Archibald Thompson
- “When you are a mother, you are never really alone in your thoughts. A mother always has to think twice, once for herself and once for her child.” – Sophia Loren

My mom's middle years were marked by another marriage to a man who had "issues" with physical and alcohol abuse, and my mother bore the brunt of that behavior. Her second husband spent time in Vietnam, which did not help an already difficult situation. But mom remained ever devoted to her Nursing profession and providing for her boys. There were ups and downs and moves to different cities.

Her first real heartbreak came during her second marriage when it was decided to send her oldest son to live with his dad in San Diego. It was felt that at 13 the son was too much to handle. She later regretted this decision (she and this son did not speak together for nearly 20 years). But her insecurity and her innate dedication to being there for her husband outweighed her maternal inclinations. She and her second husband eventually settled in Mississippi where they began a small company.

During this time, her husband was diagnosed with terminal cancer from his exposure to Agent Orange in Vietnam. He died at the age of 43. During his illness, he and mom made a trip to visit her parents in San Diego. Mom had not seen her parents for 14 years. Later, the parents made a trip to Mississippi to visit and help with a dying husband. My mother and her husband were both led to a saving knowledge of Jesus Christ. He spent the final months of his life, sharing every Sunday, in a myriad of churches, about the truth of the Gospel.

After his passing, Bernice and I were asked to move to Mississippi to help my mother run the small family business, which we did. For a precious 7 years, Mom helped, and was helped, by two of her three sons. A mother's love is oftentimes stronger than life decisions on everyone's part. I knew my mother loved and believed in me. We were all given the privilege of being a family, in spite of the challenges of dysfunctional marriages and numerous familial challenges. It was during these, my mother's middle years, that Bernice and I started our path to seminary and ministry. My mother married again (her third husband) as we left for Seminary, and my brother and his family moved to San Diego.

- “A mother’s arms are more comforting than anyone else’s.” – Princess Diana
- “No language can express the power and beauty and heroism of a mother’s love.” – Edwin Chapin
- “A mother’s hug lasts long after she lets go.” – Leonardo DiCaprio
- “A mother’s love is everything. It is what brings a child into this world. It is what molds their entire being. When a mother sees her child in danger, she is literally capable of anything. Mothers have lifted cars off of their children and destroyed entire dynasties. A mother’s love is the strongest energy known to man.” – Jamie McGuire

My mom's elder years were spent living out her faith in Jesus. I watched as my mother slowly became a spitting image of her mother as far as faith was concerned. She would wear her Jesus badges on her blouses and take notes in church every week. Her third husband was a challenge, but he did give my mother a simpler lifestyle out in the country, one that she probably related to her own childhood back in the foothills of Pennsylvania. When her third husband passed away, my mom slowly started down the road of debilitating dementia. Hers had been a hard life: a challenging childhood; a missed adolescence; and abusive spouses. Still, Mom was ever faithful in loving and doing the best she could for her boys. Would she have done things differently if given another chance? Who knows. But her life-changing faith in Jesus Christ is a shared faith with not only her parents and two of her three husbands, but also with two of her three boys. Jesus in His sovereignty has allowed life to unfold for her and us in such a way that we really are in the family ... the bigger family of God. For that, I remain ever thankful for all the events that did make for a challenging childhood for us three boys. But mom is our mom. And I am amazed and grateful for His choice for her to play that role in my life.

My mom's last days were spent in silence. Bernice and I had moved my mother from Mississippi to Missouri as her dementia progressed, and she was the one who now needed to be cared for—ironically, she had lived a life of caring for others. Over the years, she lost her ability to speak, thus as I knelt beside her bed for the last time, it was me who did all the talking. I told her that I loved her and more ... no regrets. No regrets for a life we shared. No regrets for any of our collective decisions. No regrets for her being and doing the best she could. Hers was a life that I was privileged to share with the one I called mom. This one who I know is in heaven and waiting. Happy Mother's Day to you, Mom. I will see you again someday. Happy Mother's Day to all who read this article. May you take the time to think through the life of one whom God put in your life to be your mom. Ah, May, time to start thinking about what to plant.

Blessings,
Pastor David
